Prince Philip Drops a Brick

Add Prince Philip's scorched fingers to history's singed Spanish beards and Alfred's burned cakes. The Duke of Edinburgh dropped his royal brick while inspecting the Royal Canadian Regiment in Germany. He told the soldiers he and Queen Elizabeth would be visiting Canada this autumn. This flouted protocol as no official announcement had been made because of the Canadian election. Talking of beards . . .—(AP Photofax.)

It Fell Into the Sea

Mighty U.S. Missile Blasts Off—Fizzles

King-Size 'Big-Shot' A Bust

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The mighty Atlas, king-sized current star of the U.S. Air Force's guided missile program, was launched Tuesday — and exploded.

There were no casualties, an air force spokesman said. He declined to say where the big rocket met mishap or give details of what befell the maiden flight of the weapon designed for 5,000-mile range, but witnesses said they saw it fall into the sea.

Capt. Thomas Martin, public relations assistant at Patrick Air Force Base, said "shortly after launching the missile exploded. There were no casualties. Valuable information was gained as a result of the test."

Thousands of persons in this thickly populated area on Florida's east coast saw a bright flash of orange flame as the missile blasted off from Cape Canaveral and rose straight upward.

Spectators at closest range said the missile began wobbling off course almost immediately after the take-off. There was an explosion in mid-air and something crashed into the sea.

It could not be determined at once whether the "big-shot" was destroyed or whether scientists at the controls brought it back for a landing at the base.

The public information office at the base declined to confirm that the missile was the Atlas, but sources which have been 100-per-cent accurate in the past said it was the big intercontinental missile.

When perfected, the Atlas is expected to be able to reach Moscow in 20 minutes. Components of the Atlas are being used in attempts to construct the "moon rocket," which scientists hope will circle the moon and photograph its dark side.

The test flight had been expected to soar easterly over the Atlantic ocean and turn southeasterly and follow the outer Bahama Islands for several hundred miles before being destroyed by remote control.

Blaze Runs Wild

HALIFAX (CP) — Hundreds of men fought Tuesday to subdue one of the most dangerous forest fires in Nova Scotia's history.

The fire swept out of control on a 1½-mile front about 30 miles northwest of Halifax. The flames left behind a trail of blackened trees, burned out summer camps and sawmills.

Deputy Forest Minister Creighton said: "Unless we get it stopped soon it can become the worst fire we have ever had."

Tory Howard Green

Prefers Election To Socred Help

* * *

VANCOUVER (CP)—Howard Green, an elder of the Progressive Conservative party in B.C., said last night the weight in party councils would be thrown against any form of working agreement with Social Credit.

HOWARD GREEN

I'd sooner have another general election than depend on Social Credit support," he said.

Leon Ladner, Federal party chairman of B.C., added, "We have our principles, and we should stand by them."

Mr. Green said his party will foster a Canadian deep-sea fleet if it achieves power.

He said the party also intends to raise the ceiling on income permitted for those who wish to draw the war veterans allowance and establish a standing house committee on veterans affairs.

MERCANTILE FLEET

"We are going to have a Canadian merchantile fleet, even if the government has to subsidize it," said the 62-year-old Vancouver lawyer who has served 22 years in parliament as a prominent opposition spokesman.

In Coast-Capilano, Fisheries Minister James Sinclair predicted another federal election will be held "within a year."

Mr. Sinclair, returned for the fifth time, described the election as "a tremendous surprise."

The Conservative success was due to the "tremendous fight put on by Johnny Diefenbaker," he said.

Hal Thayer, secretary of the CCF in the province, saw the election as a "shattering blow" to the hopes of Premier Bennett for a Social Credit upsurge.

CCF TOP PARTY

"The CCF in British Columbia politics is now the leading party as a result of the election," he said.

"The protest vote has gone to the Conservatives, but the significant thing is the shattering loss to the Social Credit party."

Leaders Meet Friday

Political Crisis Points To November Election

OTTAWA (BUP) — Developments in Canada's political upset appear to be building up steadily to another general election in November or December at the latest.

John Diefenbaker and Prime Minister St. Laurent, winner and loser in Monday's vote, are expected to meet here Friday for a discussion which could settle some of the post-election uncertainties.

Mr. St. Laurent is expected to make the first move. Constitutionally, two courses were available to him:

To meet parliament and test his ability to secure the support of the power-balancing CCF and Social Credit groups to continue in office; or to submit his resignation to Governor-General Vincent Massey and advise that Mr. Diefenbaker be called upon to form a new administration.

The second course is the one the majority of the capital's political observers expect Mr. St. Laurent to follow. The overwhelming reverses suffered by his government in all provinces except Quebec, together with the virtual annihilation of his cabinet, are regarded as dismissing any attempt to cling to power.

Most capital observers believe, in fact, that Mr. St. Laurent's own retirement will be an inevitable sequel to the election.

After forming his cabinet, he would summon Parliament to meet early in August. (Parliament has to be called in any event to vote supply for the carrying on of Government services.)

A minimum program of legislation then would be submitted to carry out pledges made in the election campaign, notably to increase old age pensions and to lower taxes.

With this legislation either passed or left for the verdict of the voters to endorse, a general election would be called, almost certainly in November, but not later than early December.

Never Surprised

Trade Minister Howe, defeated strong man of the Liberal cabinet, returned to Ottawa last night replying "I was never surprised in my life," when a reporter asked if the outcome surprised him.

Spinsters Won't Be Tourist Lure

PALESTRINA, Italy (Reuters) — The spinsters of this small town near Rome threatened Tuesday that they would not stage an annual procession to invoke heavenly help in finding husbands because they are angered at the growing publicity about the event.

The procession of the black-veiled, candle-carrying spinsters, aged between 30 and 40, of late has been used to lure tourists here. The girls want to keep it a private affair, more or less.

Palestrina chronicles say the procession dates back to 1906, when a group of women looking for husbands first had the idea of asking St. Anthony of Padua for his intercession.

'Little Bit Stickier' Washington Feels

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States diplomats said Tuesday that control of the Canadian government by the Progressive Conservative party would almost certainly mean development of a harder line toward the United States on some controversial issues.

But even if the Liberal party had been continued in power by Monday's elections, they said, about the same policy would have been expected.

The political campaign focused attention on disputes between the two countries. The campaign, as one expert noted, did not create the issues but it sharpened voter reaction to them.

As a result, he said, "we've got to expect that things will be a bit stickier between Ottawa and Washington."

Dramatic Rescue Bid Fails

Dangling 'Chutist Pleads in Vain

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Sweating crew members fought for more than three hours Tuesday to save the life of a paratrooper who dangled helplessly below their C-123 troop carrier plane. They failed.

The paratrooper apparently died in the air as an officer and two airmen tugged in an effort to get him back into the plane. His parachute lines had tangled, holding him aloft.

When overheated engines finally forced the big plane to land, ground crews sprayed slippery foam along several hundred feet of runway. With the plane only inches off the ground, the man was cut loose.

He skidded 100 feet through the foam. Ground workers rushed up. He was dead.

The Fort Bragg public information office said a preliminary medical examination indicated the victim possibly had been dead for 30 minutes. The victim's name was not disclosed.

The paratrooper's parachute apparently had failed to open completely and he became tangled in static lines left dangling out the door by other jumpers.

The crew almost had him once, but he slipped away.

"He was pleading with me while he was still alive, out there, to please bring him in," recalled Lieut. Gordon Haylinek of Two Rivers, Wis. "And I was trying all I could.

"I had hold of his left wrist and was just tugging—well, I pulled until I couldn't any more and finally had to let him go. We were all sweating and he was, too, and it was a very poor grasp that we all had."

A jet plane flew below the troop carrier and tried nudging the dangling man out from under the big plane with a wing tank.

But the paratrooper then was unconscious or dead and couldn't help himself, Lieut. Haylinek said.

French Hopes High

111 Warships

Mighty Armada Prepares Salute

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)—A mighty international armada of more than 100 warships, largest fleet ever assembled in peacetime, anchored off the Virginia coast last night in preparation for its salute tomorrow to the founding of Jamestown in 1607.

The ships lay in a double 14-mile line from the heart of Hampton Roads to a mile and a half off the sands of Cape Henry, the site of the first landing of Capt. John Smith and the Jamestown settlers 350 years ago.

The navy expected nearly 250,000 persons to watch the three review ships — the guided missile cruisers Canberra and Boston and the command cruiser Northampton — sail down and back along the 2,500-foot channel between the ships. Seventy-eight are American, 33 are from 17 foreign nations.

EXPERT election forecasts, reprinted by special request:

Star ... "The likely Liberal prospect: a drop to somewhere between 143 and 150. The Tories . . . might win as many as 89, seem more likely to get between 70 and 77 . . . The Social Crediters may well add four or five seats. Any CCF changes will be down."

Canadian Commentator:—Paul W. Fox: "The betting on Parliament Hill is that no party will gain or lose more than 12 seats . . . This estimate seems about right. The mood of the country does not indicate that there is any overwhelming sentiment for change."

Saturday Night magazine (forecast wisely hedged by "ifs" and "buts"): Liberals 155, Conservatives 72, CCF 17, others 21.

Macleans: ". . . We Canadians have once more elected one of the most powerful governments ever created by the free will of a free electorate."

(This forecast is in a class by itself. It appears in the issue dated June 22, which is something like betting on a losing horse after the race is over).

Bullets Plus Pesos

Public Opinion poll: "Liberals 48 per cent of the vote, Conservatives 34. The Liberals will win at a Gallup."

That must have been the Cuban election they were talking about.

In Latin American countries, it's much easier to be a political expert than it is here. All you do is count your cartridges, add the total to the number of pesos in the treasury, and there is the result of the election, to a fraction of a voter.

In Russia, the forecasting trade is a cinch, because all the elections come out (roughly) Communists 100 per cent, others 0.

But in Canada, Great Britain and other such untidy countries, experting is a headachy business. We voters are to blame. With Time magazine to inform us of the result, we need never go to the polls at all. Are we grateful for this labor-saving device?

Stubbornly, we trudge down to the polls and mark our X's by hand. What a backward group we are.

Canton Papers . . .

Beautiful Heaven Goes to Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — Will Canton newspapers please copy?

In one of those free elections which only rich and foolish capitalist countries can afford, the son of Jung Yik Ching, of your city, Monday night was elected a member of Canada's Parliament.

He was put there by Vancouver people who live in bright, childless apartment blocks in the West End, above the chop suey restaurants of Chinatown, and in the melting pot of Skid Road.

But, a generation makes an enormous difference, and those of you who knew Jung Yik Ching, and his wife, Lin Ho, before they left Canton at the turn of the century, might well have had difficulty placing Ten Wah, their boy.

He is Douglas Jung to the Canadians whom he will help govern, not the "Beautiful Heaven" of his Chinese suffix.

SIMPLE KEY

And when he was hoisted onto two occidental shoulders at Progressive Conservative headquarters after his victory, it was plain that 33-year-old Doug Jung, the first Canadian of Chinese extraction to become a member of Parliament, had found the simple key for cracking the political race barrier.

Put aside your picture of rattling abacus, of steaming laundries and fan tan.

Doug Jung's $125 grey flannel suit was made by a Roumanian tailor, the suede shoes were of an English cut; only the ring on his finger linked up the past, for it was Chninese jade, for good luck.

What produced this new, successful blend of Orient and Occident?

Doug Jung, finally torn from the clasp of the jubilant Sikhs with their beards and their turbans, and the Chinese girls in the baseball windbreakers, and the Conservative matrons decked as for an IODE convention, could not really explain it himself.

Industrious parents; his father was a mill worker and a gardener, and his mother found time to teach English in a Chinese kindergarten in Victoria, the town of their adoption and Doug Jung's birth.

Doug was photographer for the annual at Victoria High School, and at school's end became a salesman in a Vancouver Chinatown grocery. Into the army in 1943: intelligence service in the southwest Pacific, paratroop training, eight-jumps, and skulduggery behind Japanese lines in New Guinea, which he determinedly refuses to discuss.

Back to Vancouver, then, as head of the Chinese section of the Unemployment Insurance Commission for three years, then on to UBC, and his call to the bar in 1954, three short years ago.

He became the first Chinese-Canadian lawyer to appear in the B.C. Court of Appeal and, moreover, was successful. A "stab" at a provincial by-election under the Conservative banner followed, and was not so successful.

Monday night's victory at the polls for Doug Jung made mama Jung more than happy. One son is an airlines pilot, another a medical doctor in the Philippines; with her youngest a member of Parliament, and the thousands more back in Canton, would know she had not failed.

Club Officer Maintains:

Youth 'Police' Won't Develop Into Fascist-Type Bullies

An officer of the National Youth Club last night denied suggestions that the club's police force could develop into a group of fascist-type bullies.

Supervisory manager Con Watling said the club police had authority over club members, not teen-agers outside the club. Even inside the club, itself, they had been instructed not to lay hands on offenders.

"The police are restricted to laying complaints against members to the complaints committee," he said. "The whole system is based on Canadian justice.

"The police lay charges against members, which are heard by a court consisting of six members of the complaints committee. The comittee hears both sides and decides whether the charge is warranted, and if it is, what the fine will be."

Members charged with an offence could be represented by another person, Mr. Watling said, and if a fine was imposed the member could appeal to a "higher court"—the six member supervisory committee of adults.

Rev. William Hills, rector of St. George the Martyr Church and a well-known youth leader last night denied press reports that he had said the club's police force could "quite easily develop into a little fascist group of bullies.'

The "police force" will attend the club's first function—a rock 'n' roll dance to records in the CCF Hall, Douglas Street, Friday night. And club members will dance to recordings by their first honorary member, Little Richard.

Airman Dies After Scuffle

OTTAWA (CP) — LAC Joseph R. Duffy, 37, of Plaster Rock, N.B., died Tuesday night following a scuffle in the RCAF married quarters at Rockcliffe station here, an air force official said. No details were disclosed, but the official said another airman was being detained by Ottawa police without charge.

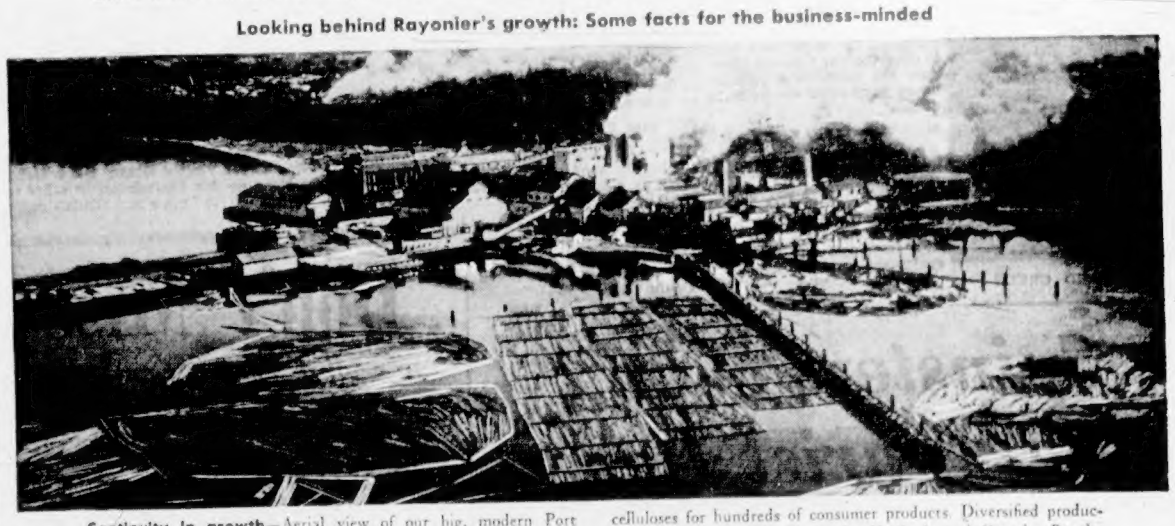
Which shoes are easier on your feet-and your pocketbook?

Answer—Both "his and hers" are tops in comfort and value! That's because the inner soles of both pairs of shoes are formed from a special Rayonier cellulose treated with latex by our customers. Its advantage? It lets shoes "breathe." And it resists body acids harmful to leather yet offers unmarched flexibility and comfort, because the new team of latex and cellulose can't buckle or crack. In fact, it will outperform leather, insulate your feet against heat and cold and help your shoes give longer, more comfortable wear.

A new note in shoe fashion and quality, these inner soles save smart shoppers money because premium cellulose is still low in cost and helps keep shoe costs down.

Creating new versatile celluloses—often before the need is apparent—is another way Rayonier grows in the U. S. A. and Canada.

Looking behind Rayonier's growth: Some facts for the business-minded



Continuity in growth—Aerial view of our big, modern Port Angeles mill in Western Washington on Strait of Juan de Fuca. Here are produced 127,000 tons of chemical cellulose a year for many products including inner-soles. This mill has grown in capacity, flexibility, efficiency—and now turns out 12 kinds of quality celluloses for hundreds of consumer products. Diversified production typifies all our mills in the U. S. A. and Canada. Result: dynamic growth for Rayonier and freedom from dependence on any one market, whether domestic or overseas.

Above: 2,000,000 board feet of wood float in the water!

Continuity in research—Rayonier's initial, big research payoff: in 1931, the first cellulose from western hemlock for rayon. Now we make 38 new superior chemical celluloses for film, tire cord, plastics, hundreds of high demand products. Our latest research success: a cellulose from southern pine for the new washable rayon—competitive with all fibers, natural or man-made. Watch for it!

Continuity in personnel—For our steady growth: a work force of loyal, able hands. From one mill in 1927 with 250 workers to 1957's eight huge plants with capacity approaching 2,000,000,000 lbs. annually, Rayonier now counts 7400 skilled employees in Canada and the U. S. A. This year 269 men and women celebrate their 25th year with us, while more than 400 are now receiving retirement benefits.

Woman Top Prospect For Federal Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—The first Progressive Conservative cabinet in 22 years would likely include the first woman federal cabinet minister in Canada's history.

There appeared to be little doubt here that Mrs. Ellen Fairclough of Hamilton West would be taken into the administration by John Diefenbaker. She might become either health or labor minister.

Several other veteran Conservative members of Parliament are certain to be included.

With more than 50 new Conservatives in the Commons, there is a good possibility that some freshmen members may acquire cabinet portfolios.

Traditionally, all, or nearly all, provinces are represented by at least one cabinet member. Quebec and Ontario usually supply half the cabinet with the others drawn from the other eight provinces. As the third largest province, British Columbia would likely get two or even three.

Possible choices for cabinet jobs:

External Affairs—Davie Fulton, Kamloops.

Pearkes' Belief?

Army Needs 'More Teeth, Less Tail'

OTTAWA (CP)—A reappraisal of the top administration in the defence department may be in the offing if a Progressive Conservative government assumes office.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, who may succeed Hon. Ralph Campney as defence minister, has said the present chiefs of staff system should be overhauled.

The defence portfolio is becoming a more difficult job as costs continue to rise.

The defence budget in this 1957-58 fiscal year is $1,746,000,000, or more than one-third of all government expenditures.

ONE SERVICE

Gen. Pearkes has contended that duplication exists in the services and that it should be eliminated. He has also said the armed forces must eventually be unified into one service.

A number of Conservatives have indicated from time to time that they feel some of the Canadian forces in Europe—a 6,000-man infantry brigade group and 300-plain air division—should be withdrawn to strengthen home defences.

Some changes which might be expected in the defence department under a Conservative administration:

1. More emphasis on air transport and armor for the army.

2. An attempt to reduce the number of administrative personnel and increase the number of combat troops—or less "tail" and more "teeth."

3. Establishment of a Commons defence expenditures committee. There has been no such committee since 1953 when irregularities were uncovered in the army works service.

4. Establishment of a committee or commission to review departmental administration.

5. Increased emphasis on weapons research.

Tory Wants Recount After 79-Vote Defeat

VANCOUVER (CP)—The second-place candidate in Canada's closest election race said Tuesday he will seek a recount in hopes of wiping out the 79-vote margin of his leading rival.

Lawyer John A. W. Drysdale, Progressive Conservative contender in the suburban Burnaby-Richmond riding, said he will file a legal request for a new count in efforts to unseat Social Credit candidate Tom J. Irwin, declared winner in the four-cornered fight.

After an all-night security guard was placed on the sealed office of returning oficer F. H. Mileson, counters returned Tuesday to process the last poll and declared the result: Irwin 8,139, Drysdale 8,060.

The seat previously was held by Liberal Tom Goode, who obtained 7,071 votes in Monday's poll. The fourth candidate, Robert Prittie, CCF, received 7,603 votes.

At present the breakdown of B.C.'s 22 seats is: CCF 7, Conservatives 7, Social Credit 6, Liberals 2. In 1953 it was CCF 7, Liberal 8, Conservatives 3 and Social Credit 4.

Returns officials in Vancouver-Centre and Vancouver Quadra reported that some deputy returning officers in their constituencies had put their total compilations for their polls into the locked ballot boxes. The boxes cannot be opened until the official count begins next Monday.

The Accolade

STUDY of the election returns emphasizes the national nature of the defeat suffered by the Liberals. In every province—they lost ground. In only two provinces did they hang on to a majority of the seats and even there, in the special preserve of Quebec and in the pocket borough of Newfoundland, their preponderance was breached. They managed to halve the New Brunswick seats but elsewhere across the country they were left badly in the minority, in four provinces being barely represented and in Prince Edward Island totally shut out. If the Liberals' pre-election claim of being the only national party in Canada were now to be applied against them—on the basis of seats held in every province—they would no longer rank as nation-wide.

By contrast the Conservative party made significant gains from coast to coast. While not winning an absolute House majority they increased their standing in every single province, and in six of them left the Liberals floundering in their wake. This was achieved also not at the expense of the minor parties but in spite of them, for both the Socreds and the CCF slightly increased their Commons standing. In all the Liberals lost 70 seats and the Conservatives gained 60 seats, a marked national rejection of the former and a notable endorsement of the latter. There can be no two ways about it that in according the Conservatives more seats than any other party, a total of 112, Canadians emphatically awarded them the accolade.

This great victory of the Conservatives over the Liberals was tremendous testimony to the new Conservative leader himself, Mr. John Diefenbaker. It became evident during the campaign that he roused the nation as seldom before, and by his arresting personality and vigorous leadership he rallied the country behind him in his bid for a new deal. The cause of responsible government, lost sight of and in fact betrayed by the dry-rot of over-long Liberal dominance, was upheld. In the hands of Mr. Diefenbaker parliamentary institutions would be safe, and a new and enlightened government formed to take the place of the Liberal oligarchy.

Mr. St. Laurent's Secret

ONE of the Liberal Government's most closely guarded secrets—what Mr. St. Laurent as prime minister of Canada wrote to Sir Anthony Eden in the early stages of the Suez crisis last year—could at long last become public property, as it should have been from the beginning, if Mr. Diefenbaker is entrusted with the formation of a government. That there was a formal note from Canada has not been refuted. Mr. St. Laurent, however, has steadfastly denied that it contained the severe rebuke attributed to him by some of his opponents, notably Mr. Solon Low, but has just as steadfastly refused to disclose precisely what was in it. That note therefore quite properly became one of the issues in the election campaign, as a factor in Commonwealth relations.

As a statement of Canada's opinion of Great Britain's action at Suez, and possibly also of the government's intentions, the note should be part of the official record, though it does not necessarily follow that it is. Mr. St. Laurent could scarcely withhold it from the files on the pretext he used in connection with a recent letter to the CBC, that he wrote as a private citizen. If it is there Mr. Diefenbaker should have access to it in the event of his becoming prime minister.

Decision then whether or not to inform the public could be a difficult one for Mr. Diefenbaker. If the note was as mild as Mr. St. Laurent protested it was, no harm could have been done by releasing it long ago; but if it was not—if it contained as alleged an implied or direct threat of Canadian withdrawal from the Commonwealth—Mr. Diefenbaker might well conclude that to publish it now would serve no useful purpose and could do much harm. That aspect of the Suez issue is virtually dead, and what position Canada may adopt in the future is not likely to bear resemblance to anything Mr. St. Laurent's government may have contemplated seven months ago. One of the Conservative party's chief purposes in seeking election was to bring Canada and the United Kingdom into closer co-operation, and threshing old straw would not help to accomplish that. So it may transpire that Mr. St. Laurent will be allowed to cherish his secret.

Epidemics Are Costly

IT is a little disturbing that health officials on this continent, some already in touch with the first cases of a mild form of influenza among passengers from the Far East, are allowing such contacts to proceed without quarantine. There seems to be small doubt about the spreading of this disorder through Asian ports. The fact that the disease is taking a mild form is offset by the considerable number of cases that already have been reported on the other side of the Pacific. No epidemic, however slight, is a welcome visitation. Even a three-day confinement with a mild form of influenza could impose serious losses on a nation-wide basis.

Suppose, for instance, that instead of a mild form of influenza the spreading complaint had been, say, measles. Would that be any reason for inviting such an importation, with possible widespread consequences? On the basis of public protection one would have thought that any contact with a disorder of an epidemic nature would naturally be quarantined until the risk of handing on the complaint was over. There is only one place now where this could be done and that is at the ports of entry on this seaboard. Last week, however, trans-Pacific contacts with the Far East's wave of influenza were permitted to land in California, on the recommendation that they see a physician.

If in consequence of that evidences of the same complaint break out on this seaboard and spread across the continent, quarantine officers may have something for which to answer. Whether diseases are mild or severe sometimes alters with seasonal conditions. The "light" flu of the Orient today conceivably might not remain in the same category. An epidemic of the real thing would certainly be something to avoid at all costs, as the world has learned to its sorrow. In any event, the thought that an epidemic of anything is under way and that it is not being stopped by quarantine at landing stations on this side of the ocean is disturbing.

One trusts that if Canadian immigration officials on the Pacific are faced with this problem among incoming passenger lists they will consider the protection of the many, rather than the temporary inconvenience of a few individuals. It would be much better for two or three contacts to spend a week in quarantine at their port of arrival than to have even a "mild" form of influenza sweep the country, with absenteeism and industrial losses mounting by the hour. If quarantine service does not imply such protection when it can be applied, what does it stand for?

Egypt Reconsiders Stand

By CHARLES McCANN
United Press Correspondent

THE chief Western allies appear to be making a series of moves aimed at improving their relations with Egypt.

Great Britain has released $16,800,000 in blocked credits to permit Egypt to get some badly needed good which British dealers had contracted to send to that country before the Suez Canal crisis started.

It is reported that the United States is negotiating to release some blocked Egyptian credits also earmarked for purchase of goods.

France, though still bitter over the whole Suez situation, is reported to be ready to follow the lead of Britain and the United States and permit its ships to resume using the canal.

On the surface, all the moves mentioned seem to constitute a victory for President Nasser of Egypt, who caused an explosion in the Middle East by seizing the Suez Canal last July.

* * *

But there are indications that Nasser may be wondering whether a more reasonable attitude toward the Western powers might not pay off.

There certainly is no sign that Nasser is thinking about a fundamental change in his policies, which since the Suez Canal seizure have been anti-Western.

But Nasser received quite a setback when young King Hussein of Jordan won a victory over his political enemies, who with the active support of Nasser tried to overthrow him.

* * *

It is now reported that Nasser is having some trouble in his economic relations with Soviet Russia and its satellites.

Dispatches from Cairo say that Russia and other countries of its bloc are not delivering goods for which Egypt paid in cash. Wheat and crude oil which Russia has sent to Egypt are reported to be of mediocre quality. It is reported that some of the cotton which Egypt is sending Russia is being dumped on the World market at cut rates, to the damage of Egypt's export trade.

* * *

Evgeny V. Kissilev, Soviet ambassador to Egypt, left for home recently after a conference with Egyptian Finance Minister Abdel Moneim Kaysouni. The official version is that Kissilev went to Moscow on his annual vacation. But there are indications that his trip home is due partly at least to Egyptian complaints over economic relations.

THOSE who heard Dr. Ralph Lapp, the American nuclear scientist, on television last Sunday, would have food for thought on the rise of the scientific conscience.

Scientists produced the atom bomb and its descendants, and may therefore be held to blame for the menace which hangs over the world today.

That is not the whole story, of course. Nuclear energy can be a boon as well as a disaster, and if left safe to pursue its peaceful benefits mankind may be blessed.

Atomic power was not born with peaceful intent, however, and on this point the TV interviewer put a plain, blunt question to Dr. Lapp.

While working to create the very first A-bomb, the one that was dropped on Hiroshima, were the scientists concerned never troubled by conscience?

Dr. Lapp said they were. In off hours, at informal gatherings, various moral doubts were expressed about the terrible nature of the weapon they were making possible.

* * *

There was one overriding factor, however. As far as was known then the Germans were also developing nuclear explosive power. This proved later not to be the case, the Germans being far behind in this field, but at the time the allied scientists were presented with a grim choice.

Either they could complete their research or face the risk of allied defeat and Nazi domination through the use of atomic power.

It was believed to be a race and they chose to go ahead.

In scientific research there is another factor that must also be considered. Dr. Lapp referred to the joy of scientific discovery and the curiosity that is a motivating force in all research work. Merely to find out something, regardless of what happens afterwards, is an end in itself.

It was a visit not long ago to Hiroshima that caused Dr. Lapp to dissent from further nuclear explosion testing. While there he was shown photographs of Japanese victims of the first atom bomb, and he admitted that when he looked at them he felt a sense of guilt for his part in the development of the bomb.

* * *

The admission, I thought, made in public to millions of television watchers, did him credit. It also explained his current position as a petitioner calling for agreement to abolish further tests.

He was asked why the signers, 2,000 U.S. scientists, did not appeal directly to all scientists, for example to Russian scientists, to halt their nuclear weapon activities. His reply was that the responsibility of U.S. scientists could not extend beyond their own country.

Dr. Lapp was asked another forthright, awkward question. Supposing an even more terrible weapon than nuclear power could be forged, some agency that could visit utter destruction on humanity by simply pressing a button; would he work on such a project?

His answer was no.

To the layman the degree of difference between a hydrogen bomb and anything even more lethal seems small; one seems as dreadful as the other.

The only comforting aspect of all this is that the conscience of scientists has been aroused. It is perhaps somewhat late in the day for this to happen but it is a gain nevertheless. But what can be done to orient the abstract curiosity in research which paves the way for the consequences?

For there is much good as well as potential evil in scientific research.

Letter from London

Harmless Epidemic Could Bring Chaos

By RICHARD L. THOMAS Daily Colonist Correspondent

WHEN the Dutch ship Willem Ruys called at Southampton recently more than two-thirds of her complement of passengers and crew had been down with a new kind of Asiatic influenza. British ships from Singapore have suffered the same way—and from Hong Kong to Bombay the epidemic has been raging, laying low most people who come into contact with it. It is not, it seems, a very serious illness, although the virus is a new strain which has not yet been effectively attacked.

Generally speaking the new influenza—unlike its predecessor in 1919 which also started in Asia—is not a killer. It creates a violent fever, severe aches and pains and then disappears.

Medically nothing is known about it and the only thing to do is to go to bed for three or four days, then get up and take a tonic and forget about it. As far as is known there are no aftereffects and there is nothing dangerous about it to sensible people.

Even so British doctors are very worried about it. They fully expect it to have a gallop through the United Kingdom and the only reason it has not started, according to medical men, is the spell of cold weather we have been having; but that has gone, at least temporarily, because June broke upon us with blazing glory and the temperatures soaring into the higher 80s gave us the promise of a real summer. At the moment of writing it has lasted two days without a break! If this sort of thing goes on, say the doctors, it will be fertile ground to give everyone a dose of the new 'flu. The medical worry is not the disease itself, but the strain it will throw on the national health service.

* * *

The average British doctor has approximately 1,800 patients on his list—he may have a few who pay him privately but the majority are national health patients for whom he receives the state capitation fee equivalent approximately to $2.50 per head per annum. It gives the doctor an assured income of around $4,500 a year, for which he contracts to provide all the medical treatment his patients need. Many doctors have more patients on their list and others fewer. There are partnerships in which three or four doctors between them have anything up to 10,000 patients.

If the Dutch ship is any criterion it appears that of any group of 1,000 people about 700 of them will get influenza. The essence of the national health service is that most patients are not all ill at the same time and some doctors have been emphatic that the only reason the service has been moderately successful to date is the fact that there has been no epidemic. It needs little imagination to foresee the plight of the doctor with 1,300 patients or so to see more or less all at the same time as well as the prospect of doctors going down with it and so needing help from an already distracted colleague.

Sick patients have little sympathy with the doctor. They will expect him to call on demand. They will be certain that they are dying if he does not, even though there is nothing much he can do for them. The patient has paid for his stamp on his insurance card and he will expect the service. The poor old doctor dashing round his practice will be faced with all sorts of complications. Old people living alone with no one to look after them will demand all his ingenuity in unravelling bureaucratic red tape to get them into already overcrowded hospitals, or trying to discover some relative who will look after them for a few days. Young people will demand certificates to send to their employers and to enable them to draw their sickness pay.

Then, of course, every patient will demand a prescription. The impoverished ones will need certificates to enable them to obtain blankets from the welfare department. The chances are that every patient down with 'flu will need three or four different pieces of paper signed by the doctor, and no doubt the local medical officer of health will call for reports as well. Doctors say frankly that if and when it comes there will be chaos.

* * *

Apart from the doctor there will be the over-burdened chemists trying to dispense the prescriptions, and an over-worked civil service trying to check the sickness claims and posting the cash. The only redeeming feature of the whole business is that this new 'flu is short, sharp and sudden; that if the doctor does not get there nothing much will happen and no one is likely to die. For this the doctors are grateful but also a little fearful, for there is nothing worse than a sick man or woman with a raging temperature. They are sure to make out they are worse than they are, at least until the medico has reassured them, and the doctor is loath to take a chance. It could mean that he is taken away from the patient who really needs him.

I inquired of one doctor whether the situation would be greatly different if there was no national health serice. "Doctors and chemists would have a tough time anyway—they always do if there is an epidemic—but patients who have to pay their doctor would be much less likely to call him. They would accept official assurance that there was little the doctor could do and be content to spend their three or four days in bed and get over it. Not so the national health patient. He is entitled to have a free doctor and have him he will—unless of course the doctor drops dead from exhaustion on the way!"

Anyway British doctors are keeping their fingers crossed. They have serious doubts whether the national health service will stand the strain if the new 'flu really does sweep Britain.

For Singing in the Street

(From the Winnipeg Tribune)

THIS country seems to need an Albert Haddock or possibly a Mrs. Albert Haddock.

Haddock, it will be recalled, is the central figure (he would decline to be called the hero) of A. P. Herbert's "Uncommon Law". He is a stout-hearted, cheerful little citizen who stubbornly declines to be pushed around by officious and bumbling officialdom using the majesty of the law. He rejoices in court battles and fights officialdom's law with common law and common sense.

On a recent Sunday, a grandmother "full of joy and thanksgiving" burst into song on a street in Calgary. Her singing was brought to an abrupt end when she was told to "shut up" by a police constable. The "shut up" procedure was later defended by the Calgary chief of police who pointed out that under Section 160 of the Criminal Code singing in a public place was an offence punishable on summary conviction.

The grandmother's reply was in the highest Haddock tradition. She declared:

"Well, maybe I was singing a bit loud, but if the day arrives when we can't join the birds of the air and sing in the streets then Sodom and Gomorrah have overtaken Calgary at last."

Under her breath she may have felt like adding that anyone who visits or even looks back at Calgary should be turned into a pillar of salt.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

ONCE a plane is in the air, air travel is wonderful. It is before the plane gets off and after it lands that air travel is an awful bore, in many instances a real mess, and in most cases a very badly managed business. And it is a wonder that air industry does not take some of its best brains off engines and aircraft designing and put them to work on solving the muddle of that part of air travel which is on the ground.

Long tedious journeys through usually dense traffic are necessary to get out to airports. Airports, for the most part, have a temporary look about them, and in many cases in this country are simply wartime premises roughly converted to civilian use. The buildings are scruffy, their doors narrow, their windows mean, the accommodation a little ticketty. A lot of it is makeshift.

Remarkable as is the improvement in aircraft and the management of schedules, the weather is still the master factor in the whole vast enterprise. If you book a flight and that flight is cancelled, you are cancelled too. You are left flat. And if, for example, you are coming by air from Texas to Toronto or from Florida to Vancouver, involving perhaps two or three different airlines in the route, if you miss a connection, your friends, waiting for you at an airport crowded with people who all appear to be full of tranquillizer pills, will wait in vain until they get back home, bewildered and perhaps worried. And there, four hours later, they get a wire from you some place half way back on the continent, informing them you will arrive at 9 p.m. instead of 4 p.m.

And just as they are about to leave again for the long tedious drive back out to the airport, you arrive at their front door, having come in by bus from the airport to some downtown centre, whence you have come by taxi, all fagged, ruffled, arm-dragged, but full of joy at having profited from the wonders of modern transportation.

Only a little bit of it was modern. Only those few hours in the air. The rest of it was about as modern as the bazaars of Benares.

Votes for Shut-Ins

In your Sunday edition of The Islander, British Columbians were criticized as being "among the worst offenders" of not exercising their franchise.

Perhaps part of this would be remedied if there were voting facilities made available to the hundreds of patients in the hospitals in Victoria.

Because a person is unfortunate enough to be hospitalized on election day, I fail to see why he should lose his important and cherished right to vote. Is our choice of representatives not to be considered because someone overlooked us?

Willing Hungarians

It occurs to me that there may be some people who urgently need help in some form or other but who, like myself until recently, are unaware that abundant help is eagerly awaiting them. I had of course read about Hungarians, but boggled at the language difficulty and anyhow did not know how to set about obtaining one. I have learned now that language is no obstacle. I am at present helped by two handweavers, one expert seamstress and one expert agriculturist.

There is an erroneous idea abroad in Victoria that every Hungarian immigrant receives $100 a day. This is entirely false. No money has ever been paid by government to any Hungarian. As many as possible have been housed and fed in the immigration quarters until work could be found for them, and they have been permitted to live there until they drew their first pay cheque. On May 11, more accommodation being necessary, some married families were housed outside at public expense, and food vouchers were supplied until work was procured. I happen to know of one case where the allowance for a family of six for two weeks amounted to $43, which nobody would cavil at.

They tread upon nobody's corns, and when I say the work may be expert I mean just that. The agriculturist gets through as much work in a day as I can do in a week. What is more he was not only very grateful and conscientious, but brought smiles, songs and a refreshing old-world courtesy to his work.

These are the kind of men and women who are at hand, longing to be employed, while immigration officers are hard put to it to get them jobs, and probably the citizens who need them do not realize the prize that awaits them. Full information may be obtained by writing to Immigration Department, 15 Ontario Street, or phoning 3-5111.

Post Office Praised

I would like to take this opportunity to hand a bouquet to the post office staff in Victoria. A bundle of magazines, namely, "The Living Message" arrived at the post office minus their address label. Using intelligence far beyond that normally attributed to postal employees, Mr. Woodward, of the information wicket, contacted the right people to give him my address and then by contacting me the right person was found to whom the magazines belonged. These magazines have now been delivered.

The Wavy Line

While remaining open for correction by any ex-Guardsman—Scots or otherwise—I think you are in error in assumption—as per caption—that the extremely wavy line of the marching troops is the quick march in-line passing review point. If any reader will again refer to the picture (Colonist, June 7), it will be noted that the two files on the extreme left have already taken their stance for a complete left wheel of the company and that the remainder are in process of that manoeuvre and the right hand guardees are stepping out for the wheeling; true the formation is not quite according to drill manual, but this particular move is a difficult "show."

The writer last year when over in England took the opportunity of attending the numerous dress-rehearsals on Horse Guards Parade preceding the actual Trooping.

Everything seemed to be well up to the usual high standard always expected. There was a very slight unevenness in the in-line march past by one company on the last parade and a military fellow next to me stated this would be quickly "ironed out" at barracks.

He added that apart from the senior warrant officers and non-commissioned officers, the men on parade were all National Servicemen only recently completed basic training with nary a medal among them of course.

One feels sure that on the eventful day, June 13, Trooping the Color this year will be as perfectly groomed as on all previous occasions.

Sincere Appreciation

May we, through your columns, express our very sincere appreciation to the Victoria florists, department stores, industrial firms and the many untiring individuals who assisted so materially in producing another successful annual June Ball at HMCS Naden.

It is with this assistance, plus the long hours of voluntary work by the committee members and many others and the generous donations of decorating materials, that we are able to keep the expenses of the June Ball to a minimum and to set aside the money required for the operation of the Armed Services Leave Centre for another year. Most sincere thanks to everyone involved.

Sealed with a Kiss

Love at first sight is the story of Bambi, the one-week-old deer of the children's zoo of New York City, and 10-month-old Sue Heckroth. Put into the cage with Bambi, Sue put out an exploratory hand to caress the deer and was immediately rewarded with a kiss.—(CPC)

'Better Defeat than H-Bomb War'

Red Yoke Preferable

LONDON (CP)—A section of British opinion feels it would be better for Britain to renounce the hydrogen bomb, even if it means Russian domination.

"It would be better to be defeated than to engage in H-bomb warfare," says Dr. W. D. L. Greer, Bishop of Manchester.

"When the last bomb has exploded, you have lost what you have been fighting for."

The bishop's plea for renunciation is carried a stage further by Sir Stephen King-Hall, British writer and former member of parliament, who suggest an inquiry into the possibility of "non-violent resistance" replacing the nuclear deterrent.

"If the inquiry should produce evidence that non-violent resistance is the most practical evidence of defending our life," writes Sir Stephen, "then morality and expediency would be on the same platform."

The two proposals are among the main strands of current British opinion, as reflected in newspapers and magazines. Generally, it is accepted that the nation supports the government's deterrent policy.

Some are worried about the power, but it is apparent that a minority of some proportions, is gravely worried.

The Manchester Guardian, commenting on the call to forswear the H-bomb, says it might be better to renounce tactical atomic weapons. There is only about one chance in 10, it says, that the gesture of giving up the bomb would lead, as Dr. Greer hopes, to disarmament through mutual trust. The higher probability would be an extension of Russian hegemony to all Western Europe and the British Isles.

The independent Liberal newspaper is more favorable toward the alternative of non-violent resistance, saying that an inquiry seems at least a "cheap precaution."

"Our only rational goal is stalemate," writes Sir Geoffrey Crowther, editor of the London Economist, in government service. "Between powers which possess undefeatable means to do each other intolerable damage, no added potential can make the mate any more stale."

Steel Slips, Worker Hurt

A hook-tender for Capital Iron and Metals Ltd. working at Ogden Point was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday about 5.30 p.m. with a badly dislocated shoulder.

Leslie H. Blake, 821 Craigflower, was guiding a piece of steel decking to the dock when it slipped, police said. He lost his footing when jumping out of the way and fell to the dock, landing on his shoulder.

Vancouver Firm Coming Here

Aero Survey Ltd. will change its operational base from Vancouver to Patricia Bay, it was disclosed yesterday by company officials.

It is a subsidiary of the British-owned Fairey Aviation Co. Patricia Bay.

Change is due to crowded conditions in Vancouver, Dennis Howell, Fairey plant manager, said.

South Africa's Governor - General E. G. Jansen will be an official guest in Portugal Aug. 7-9.

Switch to Shell Premium with TCP*
and restore lost power while you drive!
How can a gasoline bring back power your engine has lost? Only by overcoming the cause! You see, most engines lose power as a result of certain deposits which form on spark plugs and in combustion chambers. In fact, engineers agree that these deposits are the major cause of power loss in modern high compression engines. (Even a new engine can lose power within 5,000 miles). But TCP in Shell Premium Gasoline neutralizes these deposits while you drive—brings back the power your engine has lost.
*Trademark for Shell's patented gasoline additive. Patented 1955.

Wall Street At Highest In 9 Months

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks moved up to new nine-month highs when President Eisenhower returned to work fully recovered from his weekend illness.

Everything rose from Allied Chemical to Zenith. Gains ranged $8 a share in American Hawaiian Steamship. Blue chips dominated the advances to lift the high-priced Dow-Jones industrial average by more than five points. Its best gain since Feb. 15.

Railroad issues joined the rise and made their best gain since April 10. Utilities were well ahead.

Relief Expected

TORONTO (CP)—Issues on market Tuesday showed no immediate signs of discouragement about Monday's federal election.

Earlier investors seemed confused by the election results. Many looked for relief in the tight-money situation while others expected another election in the near future.

After noon, the upward trend became more definite and not as cautious.

Feature among golds was Lake Shore's 85-cent rise to $7.35. Teck Hughes climbed 42 cents to $2.62 and Leitch was up 20 cents to $1.45.

Fargo climbed $1 to $7.65 in active trading among western oils. Pacific Pete was ahead 1¾ points to 32½ and Canadian Export Gas added 40 cents at 8. Security lost 25 cents at $4.90.

Oils Strengthen

MONTREAL (CP)—Issues on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges backed away from afternoon highs in closing trading Tuesday, but averages in every section were slightly ahead.

Oils alone maintained their highs. Imperial was up ¾ and International gained ¾. Royalite climbed 2¼ and Pacific Petroleum was up 1½.

Trans-Mountain jumped three points higher in pipe lines, while Interprovincial fell ¾.

In steels, Algoma climbed a point and Dominion was ahead ¼. Atlas dropped ¾. Nickel was strong among higher-priced metals, gaining 1½. Asbestos was off a point while Hudson Bay gained ½.

In a mixed to higher papers section, Powell River was off fractionally.

B.C. Power fell ¾.

Bralorne Advances

VANCOUVER — Oils and mines produced some good features in a moderately quiet session. Bralorne added 30 cents at 4.50, while Highland Bell made another 15 cents gain at 1.90, and Pacific Nickel added pennies at 1.32. Quatsino firmed to 51 cents.

Pacific Pete recovered to $32½ among oils while United came in for some buying up to 3.40.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP)—Most prices moved narrowly in dull trade. Overseas interest in Canadian coarse grains was quiet although some export buying appeared in barley and trade reports indicated small sales to the United Kingdom. Flax also had export interest.

CHICAGO (AP)—The government's forecast for an unexpectedly large wheat crop caused selling but the market held up fairly well.

Short covering rallied wheat in late dealings after the downturn had run to a cent or more.

Corn was firm most of the time on buying influenced by heavy rains in the corn belt and forecasts for more scattered showers throughout the region. Soybeans showed little change.

Bold Ruler, Gallant Man Top Belmont Threats

Bold Ruler and Gallant Man will be the horses to watch Saturday when a field of eight three-year-olds goes to the post in the $100,000-added Belmont Stakes, final jewel of racing's triple crown.

"Bold Ruler, a well-beaten fourth in the Kentucky Derby, won the Preakness Stakes and the speedy three-year-old will be attempting to give trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons his seventh Belmont Stakes victory and jockey Eddie Arcaro his seventh winning Belmont ride.

Calumet Farm's Iron Liege won't be on hand for the Belmont because of a leg injury and joins stablemate Gen. Duke on the sidelines.

Although Laurie Kerr has not yet cleaned up all the honors in one season, as Bill McColl and Bob Fleming have done in the past, the Royal Colwood stylist usually manages to get in at least one big victory each year.

This season he took the city championship, last year he was Island Open champion and in 1955 he was city champion. If he can follow up his Oak Bay [illegible] some good showings in this week's mid-Island Open and Zone 1 championship at Nanaimo, and in the Cowichan Open next month, Laurie could yet stake his claim to a place in the B.C. Willingdon Cup team.

In the city championship, Kerr had to fight off a very determined uphill challenge by Bill McColl, who started putting like a demon and closed the gap to three strokes at the finish, to earn the runner-up spot.

Indeed it was two very fine tee shots by Kerr at the second and ninth holes of the final round that proved the difference between victory and defeat.

At the 150-yard second hole Kerr sank a No. 5 iron shot for the first ace in his golfing career, and then at the ninth his tee shot—according to one onlooker actually lipped the hole before stopping 16 inches from the cup.

The three under par for these two short holes was the margin of Kerr's final victory.

NANAIMO'S TURN NEXT: A number of Victoria's leading players intend to take part in the mid-Island championship over 27 holes, and the zone 1 championship over 36 holes at Nanaimo this weekend.

Bill McColl won the mid-Island last year and then was deprived of the double by Bob Fleming, who had been one stroke behind at the end of 27 holes, and all square at the end of 36 holes.

At the 37th, Fleming sank a long putt to win the zone title.

As in the city championship Kerr and McColl may be the leading contenders this time.

BING ADDS INTEREST TO PNW: The Pacific Northwest championship to be played over three Spokane courses July 8-13 is shaping up as one of the biggest in the history of the long established amateur event.

Ray Zinf, PNGA president from Manito Golf and Country Club where the men qualifiers will play, says that Bing Crosby's entry has stirred interest, but that the limit of 320 men and 128 ladies will be adhered to strictly.

The relief course is Spokane Country Club, while the ladies play at Hayden Lake 30 miles away in Idaho.

CENTENNIAL PROJECT WANTED: The Victoria district golf committee is still hoping to stage a golf tournament next summer that will do justice to the centenary celebrations.

At a meeting this week, the committee heard expressions of opinion that efforts should be made to have some of the leading U.S. players take part in an Island event. Many of them can be expected for the Open tournament to be played in Vancouver.

However, it takes sponsorship to attract the top-liners in golf and at the moment no one has come forward with a concrete proposition.

It is more than ten years since Victoria has had any golf event to attract the world's leading players.

GOLF CLINICS PLANNED: A proposal to bring a course of golf talks and lessons into the Victoria schools is being considered by the Victoria district professionals.

The professionals have undertaken to draw up a program for next fall, and this will be presented shortly to the Youth Development group of the Victoria District Committee.

It is hoped later to secure the co-operation of the Education Department to make selected schools available for the courses.

The scheme is being prepared in connection with the B.C. Youth Development program which is already in operation on the mainland.

Winner and runner-up will represent Vancouver Island in the B.C. championships at Vancouver next month . . . New "B" champion at the Victoria Golf Club, open to all golfers with handicaps of 12 and over, is Dr. Norman Clark. In the final last weekend he beat George Ledger, one up . . . The handicap championships at Gorge Vale and Colwood, held over because of the city championship during the past two weeks, will be resumed Sunday.

MICKEY MANTLE

Getting back into his slugging stride after a slow start this season, Mickey Mantle smashed his 16th home run last night at Chicago to lead the New York Yankees to a 3-2 victory over the pace-setting White Sox. Mantle also hit a double in the fifth inning and scored what proved to be the winning run as the Yanks cut Chicago's lead to four games.

Mantle, Shantz Win for Yanks; Surging Cardinals Move Closer

New York Yankees, baseball's biggest drawing card and regarded by many as baseball's best team in the clutch, came through on both counts last night as they sliced Chicago's American League lead to four games with a 3-2 victory over the White Sox.

Little Bobby Shantz, the curve-balling southpaw who has proved to be the Yanks' big-[illegible] power-hitting Mickey Mantle combined to beat the White Sox as a crowd of 49,411—largest in the majors this year—watched Chicago lose its third straight game.

Shantz outpitched veteran Jim Wilson in gaining his fifth straight victory and seventh against one defeat this season although he needed relief help from Bob Grim in the eighth. Mantle's 16th home run set off a two-run first inning and the husky outfielder then doubled and scored what proved to be the winning run in the fifth.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel put Yogi Berra in left field in an effort to put more power in his lineup. Berra, returning to action for the first time since his nose was broken at Cleveland Wednesday, singled in five trips and scored the other first-inning run.

There was plenty of action in the National League as the torrid pennant race again tightened. Pittsburgh knocked off first-place Cincinnati, 8-1, for the second straight day; Milwaukee jumped into second place with a 7-2 win over Brooklyn, and the St. Louis Cardinals won their seventh in a row by beating Philadelphia, 5-2.

As a result, only two games separate Cincinnati and the fifth-place Cards, who haven't won this many in a row since 1952.

Although the Redlegs pulled the National League's first triple play this season, the Pirates collected 13 hits, six for extra bases, as Bob Purkey won his fifth with a five-hitter.

Bobby Thomson delivered his eighth career grand-slammer as the Braves scored five in the fifth against Roger Craig to break a 1-1 tie and tag the Dodgers with a fourth consecutive defeat. Roy Campanella cracked Gabby Hartnett's National League home run record for catchers by smashing his 237th.

The Cards dropped the Phillies, winless in their last three games, behind the seven-hit pitching [illegible] won his third and drove in the deciding run with a sixth-inning single against Curt Simmons. Stan Musial, 1-for-5, matched the National League record for consecutive games played, 822 by Pittsburgh's Gus Suhr from 1931 to 1937.

Pils Rally to Edge Nanaimo; Test Irish at Arena Tonight

Vancouver Pilseners, who meet Whitey Severson's Shamrocks at Memorial Arena tonight, gave the Victorians a big assist Tuesday night by scoring twice in the final three minutes for an 8-7 Inter-City Lacrosse League victory over the pace-setting Nanaimo Timbermen.

Shamrocks can tie the Timbermen for first place by beating the Pils tonight. But they must also keep a close watch on the youthful Mainland club, which chalked up its sixth victory in 13 games last night and trails the Shamrocks by only two points.

Youthful Don Hamilton will be facing the Pils in the Shamrock nets tonight with Severson deciding to rest Gordie Johnston for this one. Hamilton, who has seen action in two previous games this season, will have as his defence pairings Bill Bamford and Jack Howse, and Lew Landless and Al Davies.

Shamrocks' big line of Pee Wee Bradshaw, Jack Bionda and Bob Dobie will remain intact while Severson will again use Al Gill on a line with Don Sherry and Ed Kowalyk. Third line will be 16-year-old Tom Wyatt with veterans Jackie Northup and Bert Bertaio.

TRIBEMEN LEAD

Pilseners trailed for most of their game with the Islanders last night. The Timbermen, again getting fine service from some of their younger players, jumped into a 3-0 first period lead and were ahead, 5-4, at half-time and 6-5 going into the final quarter.

Vancouver tied the count at 6-6 early in the fourth frame on a goal by Norm Usselman, but Nanaimo's Harold Fox gave the Timbermen the lead midway through the period.

Pilseners turned in their best lacrosse in the last six minutes of play after coach Jack McKinnon was ordered out of the player's box after an argument with referee Mike Munro.

Within a minute of McKinnon's departure, Ted Hunt tied the score and Joe Salley notched the winner.

Outstanding in defeat was Nanaimo goalie Alf Shuker, who made 34 stops to 20 by Vancouver's Dave Unwin.

Errors Costly as Farmers Lose

The almost air-tight defence which proved one of the major factors in Farmer Construction's meteoric start in the Northwest Semi-Pro Baseball League faltered last night, and Farmers went down to their second straight defeat at Royal Athletic Park.

An eighth-inning error by Bruce Carmichael let in two runs for Vancouver Young Liberals, who edged Farmers, 3-1. It was the fourth loss in 13 games for Farmers, and cut their lead over the Vancouver club to two games.

Left-hander Bill Garner went all the way for Farmers, and gave up eight scattered hits in his bid for a fourth win in five starts. He shut out the Liberals for seven innings, and had two out in the eighth before the runs scored.

Roy Hammond started off the inning with a walk. Bill Taylor bunted, and both runners were safe when Stu Mitchell elected to try for Hammond at second.

A sacrifice advanced them to second and third. Garner rallied to strike out Ed Garay, then walked Gerry Lorenz to fill the bases.

First-baseman Jim Andrews lifted a short pop fly to Carmichael that should have ended the threat, but Carmichael let it get through his hands, and two runs scored on the play.

Liberals added an insurance run in the top of the ninth when pitcher John Rucks singled, Ed Lorenz bunted, and Mat Yanchuck singled.

Farmers came scrapping back in their half of the inning to load the bases, but Rucks retired the side without a run.

Farmers managed only seven hits off Rucks, who was in control most of the way. They got their run when Carmichael beat out an infield single in the fifth inning and scampered all the way in on a wild throw at first base.

Rucks struck out five and walked three. He gave up only one extra-base hit, a double to catcher Jim Harford. Carmichael and Harford were the only Farmers to collect two hits.

Garner struck out nine and walked three.

Farmers try to get off on another home winning streak Saturday, when they meet Seattle Serv-All Stores in a double header at Royal Athletic Park.

It will be the first time the city club has been up against any of the top American teams in the league's southern division. The Seattle club, with plenty of near-by colleges from which to draw players, is considered one of the biggest threats for league honors.

Mounties Lose First Place; Unearned Runs Help Twinks

Vancouver Mounties let in six unearned runs with three errors at Hollywood last night, and were knocked out of first place in the Pacific Coast League as they took a 9-3 trouncing in the opening game of their series with the surging Stars.

San Francisco Seals grabbed the league lead again by nipping Sacramento Solons, 5-4. Bill Renna's 11th-inning home run, his seventh of the season, gave the Seals the win.

Don Rowe held the Mounties to eight hits, striking out seven, but Nanaimo's Harold Fox gave the Timbermen the lead midway through the period.

Bill Causlon's hitting was the other big factor in the Stars' victory. Causlon took over the league batting lead with three hits in five trips to boost his average to .329. Buddy Peterson of the Mounties, who led going into last night's game, went hitless and dropped to .322.

Hopes to Meet Robinson Hungry for Big Pay Day

Basilio Finds Ring Riches Hard to Obtain

By OSCAR FRALEY

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (UP) — Bulging-browed Carmen Basilio knelt on a sun-swept boat dock as the "admiral" of the 1,000 Islands fleet poised a sword over his close-cropped head and prepared to "knight" him.

A broad grin swept over the battle-scarred features of the welterweight champion and, looking up at the "admiral" and his sword, Basilio quipped:

"Just like all these fight managers. Ready to take his cut."

Which may explain in part why the one-time onion farmer is hoping today to get an opportunity to destroy a long-time idol.

Carmen Basilio needs a "big pay day."

Even when you're the champion of the world, it is no guarantee that you are financially "loaded." And so it is with Basilio, an iron-hand terror in the ring but a butter-soft "touch" on the outside. He has had his share of lucrative fights but the circle of pleading palms is large and Basilio is too nice for his own good.

Bringing him face to face with the necessity of blasting aside the man who long has been his fistic idol, Sugar Ray Robinson, another of the mighty who found that the riches of the ring are difficult to retain.

Basilio thinks he can do it, too.

"Robinson was one of the great fighters," Basilio analyzed with the admiration of a crowding slugger for the master boxer. "But he has got to be over the hill and I know I can beat him."

So Basilio has it worked out in his mind just how he will beat Robinson — if given the chance.

"He's dangerous only for four or five rounds now," Basilio explains. "Then he's got to run out of gas. So I'll have to feint and move him, keep on top of him and never let him rest. If I stay on him, he won't."

That, to Carmen, is a plan of battle without flaws. The only thing which nags him is a fear that he won't get the fight because of Robinson's extreme financial demands. Still, Basilio has an alternative.

"If he doesn't come to terms soon," Basilio threatened, "I'm going to take the winner of the Kid Gavilan-Vince Martinez fight and defend the welterweight title against whichever one wins.

"I just can't wait too long," he added. "I've got to have a big pay day."

Heavy Springs Off Oak Bay; Good Spot to Capture Crest

Best bet for anglers to win a King Fisherman Prince crest for June in the spring salmon division would appear to be off Oak Bay, where the heavy ones are now being pulled in daily.

Big ones caught there over last weekend include a 21½-pounder by Earl Fenwick, a 17½-pounder by Mrs. Frankie Irish, a 25-pounder by S. W. Anderson and a 30½-pounder by Richard Berry.

But the big springs are being caught pretty well all over the Island and a lucky strike anywhere could produce a crest winner.

More and more anglers are subscribing to the Colonist to get in on the big merchandise prizes and to read the most complete fishing reports published anywhere in Canada.

A subscription to the Colonist is full value at any time and it is a small entry fee for a contest with more than $1,500 worth of merchandise prizes, many of them as hidden weight prizes.

Inverness Rugged Test For U.S. Open Golfers

The nation's top par-busters bowed deep and low to the clutching rough and evident greens at Inverness after semi-final practice rounds for the U.S. Open Tuesday and predicted a winning score as high as a 10-over-par 290.

Nobody was breaking par in the practice rounds preceding the opening 36 holes on Thursday, when 162 candidates for America's greatest fairway prize start a three-day chase over the rolling 6,919-yard par 70 layout.

It was still Ben Hogan, seeking a record fifth open title, listed as the man to beat. But even Bantam Ben was having his troubles. He shot a pair of 73's in warmup rounds over a course where he always was sensational in the one-time four-ball championships.

The usual howls about the manner in which the U.S. Golf Association always narrows the fairways and lengthens the rough were louder than usual. Because the greens at Inverness are small and lighting fast.

Complicating the preparations, the course was closed until noon yesterday because of a heavy morning-long downpour. But the USGA put a brighter aspect on things for the hungry pros by announcing that prize money has been increased from $25,000 to $30,000 raising first place money to $7,200.

Shelley Mayfield, one of the touring brigade, made the prediction after a practice 73 that "it's my belief this one could be won with a score as high as 290."

Saanich Plea

'Keep U.S. Fruit Out'

A hope that something might now be done to help the berry industry on this coast was voiced yesterday by Saanich berry growers in the wake of Monday's election.

"For years," they said, "we have been asking for some protection against dumping in Canada of U.S. berries and fruit. The Liberals did little for us, nothing to speak of.

"Why couldn't we get some of the protection that has been given to car manufacturers in Eastern Canada?"

Another sore point with the growers was the 10 per cent sales tax on cut flowers. Protests to Ottawa brought only one result: no tax on potted plants.

On one subject all appeared agreed: in Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes they had a good, hard-working representative.

"Perhaps, with the general in the government, things may pick up for the berry growers," they said.

Yesterday's rainfall was received with mixed feelings by Saanich strawberry growers.

"If is true that the rain stopped picking for shipment," they said. "The danger of mould would be too great. One soft spot would spread mould through a carload by the time it reached the Prairie provinces.

"Until the present ready-crop is cleared, we will be picking for jam."

"The rain may cost us a few berries," said William Mattick, 2573 Cordova Bay Road. "We may lose some, but for every pound that is spoiled the rain will bring us an extra 10 pounds of increased weight in berries still to come."

G. A. Vantreight, 4437 Tyndall, agreed, but hoped there would be no rain for some days to come.

Came Pretty Close Pollster Declares

TORONTO (BUP)—The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, Canada's Gallup poll, denied yesterday it had missed widely in calling the turn in Monday's election.

Its June 1 opinion showed the Liberals favored by 48 per cent of persons questioned who had made up their minds, and the Conservatives favored by 34 per cent. The final popular vote gave the Liberals only 40⅔ per cent and the Conservatives 38½.

Co-director Wilfrid Sanders of the institute said this was an error of only 3.2 percentage points and the poll only claims to be accurate within four points.

City May Seek Law to Curb Exhaust Fumes

Victoria-Esquimalt health board may seek legislation governing the discharge of truck and bus exhaust fumes.

Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy, district medical health officer, will find what some U.S. cities require in the way of high-level exhaust discharge, and then will draft a resolution which may be sent to the provincial government.

School Trustee Richard Reeve called for action at a meeting of the board yesterday, saying that exhaust fumes constituted a proven health hazard.

The board tossed back to city council another smoke problem. A Gorge Road property-owner had complained that fumes from the B.C. Forest Product plywood plant were making her property unsaleable. Council referred the complaint to the health board, but the board maintained that wood-smoke was not a health problem.

The award also provides for a 16-cent hourly boost, retroactive to April 1, and a further seven cents Oct. 1, raising the hourly rate to $2.57.

The union will revert to its original demands for a raise to $3.25 an hour.

A small group of tourist officials and marine history enthusiasts met yesterday to spark an idea that could become a centennial project tied in with a proposed historical pageant next year.

In an informal session the seven-member nucleus of the project committee decided to investigate plans and costs of building a replica of Capt. George Vancouver's exploration ship Discovery.

Suggestion was that the model be anchored or set in a concrete slab at the tourist bureau end of the Causeway.

The committee is composed of representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, Thermopylae Club, Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, HMC Dockyard and the B.C. Government Travel Bureau.

MOTHERS!

Here's why your children should...

1 EAT WHOLE FRESH ORANGES

When children eat the whole fresh orange they get all the VITAMIN C that nature put there, as well as other important elements found only in the fresh fruit.

Get the Valuable BIO-FLAVONOIDS

The BIO-FLAVONOIDS found in the "meat" of the fresh orange actually boost the efficiency of VITAMIN C, allowing it to do a better job for children of building bones and muscles, sound teeth and gums.

PROTOPECTINS, too!

2 DRINK WHOLE FRESH ORANGE JUICE

The delicious meaty solids left in tangy, home-squeezed juice provide greater nutritive value.

Don't Strain Out The Solids

Teamed with VITAMIN C, these factors in the meat of fresh oranges help keep capillary walls strong, elastic and efficient.

It's one of the reasons freshly squeezed Sunkist Orange Juice is so good for you and your children.

The type of persons to be accommodated, chairman Cecil Sammon suggested, would be mentally ill cases who otherwise would have to go to Essondale.

"We are very pleased that they will be open," Mr. Warren said. "[illegible] were disappointed last summer. We are very glad that they will be open for longer than [illegible] months."

[illegible] had caused a stage of [illegible] all along the line in past years.

King's Son Is Famous As Designer

NEW YORK — With summer just round the bend, hot weather cotton is king again, even for a king's son.

Count Sigvard Bernadotte, son of King Gustav of Sweden and brother of Queen Ingrid of Denmark, has just entered the fashion world with a new line of cotton knits.

Already famous as an industrial designer, the Count has patterned Danish silver, Swedish ship interiors, and European stage sets, calculators and fountain pens.

But now the university-trained member of the Swedish royal family, who lives in Denmark as a commoner, has turned his imagination to fabrics. Count Bernadotte lives modestly in Copenhagen with his wife—an ex-fashion designer—and his 12-year-old son. He likes to be called "mister," and takes pride in earning his own living.

Using traditional knitwear design and color schemes of Scandinavia, he has created a series of small geometric patterns, [illegible] horizontal or vertical stripes as well as little bonnie patterns. The results are crisp and cool [illegible] black and [illegible] these cottons are attractive enough for [illegible] kinds are being pounced in theatre and dancing.

the U.S. by the country's largest producer of cotton knit fabrics in a variety of weaves which simulate hand knitting.

They are treated with "thermosetting resins" which make cottons hold their shape and resist wrinkles. This is especially important for stretchy cotton knits and as a result they make up into vacation-time sportswear which is wash fast and pack-proof.

Knit cotton has become high fashion only in the last few years. But cotton has been growing steadily in popularity, despite the phenomenal rise of synthetic fibre textiles.

According to the National Cotton Council, women today are wearing more cotton than at any time in the last decade. This year it accounts for about [illegible] per cent of all women's wear, as compared with 23 per cent in 1947. And the move towards cotton as high fashion has been the major force in pushing the industry out of its depression doldrums.

Abundant stretchless, non-static, non-clinging, the newest cotton knits sail comfortably through the hottest summer days. [illegible] these cottons are attractive enough for [illegible] kinds are being pounced in theatre and dancing.

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

NO SMEAR, NO SMUDGE. A lovely writes: "My eyes look best with mascara. But it is a problem to me. It always smudges, and also dries my lashes to the breaking point. Please, have you any solutions?"

Yes, just follow these suggestions: 1. Before applying mascara, blot well around eyes with cleansing tissue. 2. Use waterproof mascara. For application of cake types, water dampen brush as sparingly as possible. Apply creams with dry brush. 3. Unless extra blonde, avoid lower lashes. 4. Let applications dry thoroughly and then whisk lashes with clean, dry brush. 5. Once made-up, avoid touching lashes and wearing tightly drawn veils. 6. Ward off breakage by brushing eyelash cream on mascara-free lashes at bedtime.

Top U.S. Court Decision Frees Spouse Killers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court Monday reversed itself and held that civilians who accompany the U.S. armed forces overseas are not subject to military trials for crimes committed abroad.

The tribunal's first decision by a three vote announced June 11, 1956 upheld the authority of military courts to try civilians. Lawyers for two women convicted abroad of murdering their husbands won a reconsideration of the decision on the ground that constitutional questions had been left unresolved.

Yesterday's ruling, by a 6-to-2 vote, means that both women go free.

No civil court now has jurisdiction to try them on the murder charges.

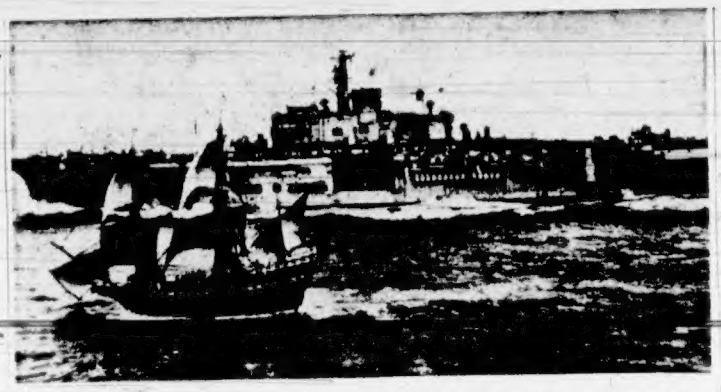
They Hope to Solve Air Crash Mystery

VANCOUVER (CP) — Transport department inspector D. D. Murphy and Alpine Club of Canada members Phipps Broda and Paddy Sherman will carry out a further inspection of the TCA North Star airliner which crashed on the slopes of Mount Slesse last Dec. 9, "within the next few days," to [illegible] of the crash which killed 62.



Striking photo shows Mayflower II and British aircraft carrier HMS Ark Royal as they passed at sea. Mayflower is on the path of the pilgrims, heading for Plymouth, Mass., and carrier is headed for today's international naval review at Hampton Roads, Va. Mayflower is 180 tons; the carrier is 36,800 tons.—(CPC)

Queen, Prince Philip Ottawa-Bound in Fall

OTTAWA (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will visit Ottawa in mid-October and spend an expected three days in the capital before an Oct. 16-21 trip to the United States.

The royal couple likely will arrive by plane in Ottawa from London Sunday, Oct. 13, remain in the capital Monday and leave [illegible] for Jamestown, Va.

The Queen and Prince Philip will confine their visit to Ottawa. They will stay at Government House and it is possible that the Queen will open the 23rd Parliament.

Announcements by Government House and the prime minister's office did not give the exact date of the visit. It is understood that no dates were included in the announcement to permit changes in present plans as a result of the Progressive Conservative victory in Monday's federal election.

The Canadian government some two months ago asked the [illegible] stop on any North American tour she might plan this year.

After the three-day Ottawa visit, the Queen and the Prince will take part in an historical pageant at Jamestown Oct. 16. Jamestown was the first permanent English settlement in the U.S. and is being commemorated this year.

Following their Jamestown visit, the royal couple will spend four days in Washington and Oct. 21 in New York City. The present plan is for them to leave that night for England.

Mayflower's Last Lap

Ambition—Good Bath

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UP) — Mayflower II arrived off the coast of America yesterday. The broad-beamed square-rigger passed Nantucket lightship, 40 miles at sea, at mid-afternoon enroute to Provincetown on the tip of Cape Cod 100 miles away.

The coastguard estimated the replica of the 17th century ship which carried the Pilgrims to America would arrive there Thursday.

The ship was still running ahead of the time it took the original Mayflower in 1620. Crew members marked their 51st day at sea yesterday. The pilgrim ship needed 66 days to cross the Atlantic.

Cmdr. Alan Villiers, skipper of the Mayflower II, has a specific ambition to carry out when he gets off his sailing ship—"have a damned bath."

Villiers said the crew members have the same thing in mind. Sanitary facilities aboard the ship are similar to those of the first Mayflower—primitive.

The veteran seafarer said he plans to top off the bath with a steak and French fries — "well done for me, rare for the other fellows."
